

Valtronic Receives Third Consecutive Leading Edge Award

CLEVELAND, OH, Valtronic Technologies (USA) Inc., has been awarded the 2009 Leading EDGE (Economic Development through Growth and Entrepreneurship) Award for the third consecutive year. The EDGE Award recognizes a select group of middle market companies in Northeast Ohio committed to growth and value creation. 95 companies in the region were honored with the award.

Midmarket companies now affect the region's economy as much as Fortune 500 companies. Only mid-market companies, with less than 500 million in annual revenue in the 17 county region served by EDGE are eligible for this award. Some of the criteria reviewed by the awarding panel include EBIT, number of spin-off's created, innovations that contributed to sales and community involvement.

Jay Wimer, CEO of Valtronic Technologies accepted the award May 20th at the banquet for recipients, held at Kent State University, in Kent, Ohio. "This award means more this year than ever as we have had to continue to innovate and look for opportunities in new markets as the economy struggles. Our employees' resourcefulness and dedication has allowed us to move forward even now. Their ability to find solutions and solve customer problems is the reason we are able to sustain. The skilled workforce of this region is second to none and a contributing factor to Northeast Ohio's economy and the community as a whole."
